The Houses

Twelve stages where the story of your life unfolds

If the planets are the actors, the houses are the stages they play on. Your birth chart is divided into twelve houses, and each one is a different part of everyday life: your body and sense of self, your money and talents, your home, your loves, your work, your hopes and dreams.

Wherever a planet sits in your chart, that is where its part of the story tends to play out. Mars in the 10th house brings its drive to your career and public life. The same Mars in the 4th house brings that energy home.

The signs, the planets and the houses all work together, and many of their themes echo one another, like the same melody played in different keys.

The houses run counterclockwise from the Ascendant

> The sign tells you how a planet acts. The house tells you where in your life it plays out.

Six pairs of opposites

Every house has a partner directly across the chart. Together they make a balance, like the two ends of a seesaw: me and you, mine and ours, home and the wider world.

SELF AND OTHERS

1st The Self

Your body, your appearance and the first impression you make. Your strong sense of who you are.

the body · persona · identity

7th Partners

The people you pair up with: your spouse, significant others, close partnerships and the pull of attraction.

relationships · partnership · attraction

MINE AND OURS

2nd Resources

What you own and what you value: money, income and possessions, and the natural talents that are your true wealth.

money · talents · values

8th Shared Depths

What you hold in common with others: shared wealth and resources, and the deep involvements that change you.

shared wealth · intimacy · depth

NEAR AND FAR

3rd Everyday World

Your daily surroundings and the people nearby: your neighborhood, conversations, and the way you think and learn.

communication · neighborhood · mind

9th Wide Horizons

Knowledge, beliefs and wisdom, and long journeys, both across the map and inside the mind.

beliefs · wisdom · travel

PRIVATE AND PUBLIC

4th Home and Roots

Your private refuge: home, safety and the inner circle of the few people closest to you.

home · privacy · inner circle

10th Public Life

Where you are most visible: your career, reputation and recognition, your place among the many.

career · fame · visibility

JOY AND BELONGING

5th Joy and Creation

Fun, play and entertainment, the things you create, and children: whatever makes your heart light up.

fun · creativity · children

11th Hopes and Friends

Your hopes, dreams and wishes, and the friends and groups who share your wavelength.

dreams · friends · community

SERVICE AND SURRENDER

6th Work and Health

Your daily work and wellbeing: health habits, co-workers and employees, and the service you give to others.

health · daily work · service

12th The Hidden Realm

What lies beneath the surface: dreams and altered states, the unconscious, your blind side, and places of retreat.

unconscious · dreams · retreat

The houses and the moon

Each New Moon and Full Moon falls in one of your houses. Look at the moon's sign and degree, find the house in your chart where it lands, and you have a clue about which part of your life is stirring right now.

Your North and South Nodes always sit in a pair of opposite houses. Together they show which balance your life's journey is asking you to find.
